

GRANDMOTHER'S CHRISTMAS MINUET.

Above your head the holly wreath-Was indiction low.
While you reduced denced beneath.
The mistleton.

Old suitors they recall it yet— Your charming face; You pessed as given of minuet With wondreas grace.

A-down the candle lighted hall You deftly trend The witching mozes that enthrall— And turn the head. Ah, as you stepped the minuet

And gently danced—
My plain grandfather seemed to get
Your heart entranced.

SUCCESSOR TO OSBORNE & PITRAT. Bont as a Coffin.

A curiosity in the way of coffins is at present on view in an establishment in Liverpool, where it was constructed necording to the design and order of, so it is said, an admiral of the British fleet. The admiral's last mooring place is in the form of a gayly painted, trimly built wherry. It is of strong build and is in all respects constructed on the lines of an ordinary double ended lifeboot, without, perhaps, quite as much sheer as is usually found in such craft. This boat coffin is caravel built and seven feet long, and will be painted, like an old man-of-war, with black and white portholes. Life lines will be fixed round her, and when completel she will present a very tily, scaworthy appearance. Two oars are to be supplied, and rudder and tiller will be duly fitted, The wood used is pine, West Africa mahogany, oak and elm. A curiosity in the way of coffins is at
